

To whom it may concern:

I would like to defend the wonderful stations like K-LOVE, which we can hear on our many trips into Fairbanks, Alaska. We are limited enough in Alaska for quality radio, and this station heard on FM translators is a breath of fresh air. I also listen to it online when I cannot hear it in the car. If we were to loose this station, as might happen if the LPFM stations take priority, I would literally be loosing the ONLY Christian music station for hundreds of miles.

The situation for people in Kodiak and Ketchikan is even more desperate - they wouldn't have ANY Christian station they could hear unless they flew out of town! We would have to all go to Anchorage, where the only other Christian music station in the state exists. PLEASE don't make this happen, K-LOVE is such a support and encouragement for so many around the state and nation.

We need family friendly radio stations so that we don't have to strain to understand the words to each song, in hope that it doesn't influence our children badly. The public needs somewhere to have immediate access to the encouraging, loving message K-LOVE brings about Jesus. Thank you for ensuring that this message will be heard for many years to come.
